CALL FOR ACTIVE PARTICIPATION

The Societat d'Onomàstica has set in motion the process of publishing Onomàstica. Anuari de la Societat d'Onomàstica, an academic e-journal dedicated to the study of names in the broadest sense of the term. The editorial board of the journal has set itself the date of September 2015 for the publication of the first issue. Accordingly, we now call on all interested parties to send us their original submissions (and, for the first issue, doing so before April 30th).

The journal is aimed at anyone who is interested in or who studies onomastics, including people who are affiliated with academic institutions, professionals and self-taught individuals. For all of this group, the journal seeks to be a useful communication tool and an effective channel for the dissemination of all kinds of research related to this field of knowledge, overcoming limitations arising from the diversity of languages, the multiplicity of academic fields and the profusion of geographic contexts and scales. Our starting premise is that names are, in themselves, an interdisciplinary concept and that, potentially, their use is open and can be studied by any disciplinary branch if there is an express wish to relate it to the onomastics perspective.

We are aware of the potentially multi-thematic and all-embracing scope of onomastics, and in order to be consistent with this we believe that the journal should be open to as many perspectives as possible from the linguistic point of view. Therefore, while using Catalan as the publication's base language, we also accept original submissions written in any Romance language, as well as in English and German.

We expect that Onomàstica. Anuari de la Societat d'Onomàstica will be published on a yearly basis. Both in terms of form and content, the editorial board wishes to meet the standards required for the journal to be considered as a high-quality academic publication. To this end, in addition to setting up an advisory board that can ensure the suitability and rigorousness of the publication at three different levels (local, national and international), it has established the principle that original submissions are to be reviewed by two anonymous experts.

This call therefore additionally serves as a statement of intent on the part of the editorial board and the board of directors of the Societat d'Onomàstica as we set in motion the project for a journal that we started to nurture a few years ago. And it is also an open and hopeful invitation for people—both our members and those who, in spite of not being members, share the ideals and principles of onomastics that inspire our society—to actively participate in this project.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Onomàstica. Anuari de la Societat d'Onomàstica is a yearly academic e-journal dedicated to the study of names in the broadest sense of the term. It is published by the Societat d'Onomàstica.

Presentation of Original Submissions

Submitted articles must be original works and written in Catalan or in any Romance language—articles in English or German are also accepted—and they should be sent to anuari@onomastica.cat. If you feel it necessary to do so, you may also send a hard copy by post to the offices of the Societat d'Onomàstica (Diputació 276, principal. 08009 Barcelona).

After the title, all works must state the author's name, his or her email address and mailing address and, if applicable, his or her institutional affiliation. Authors must also send, in a separate file, an abstract in Catalan and one in English (each of which must be no more than 500 characters including spaces) and a list of up to five keywords.

Submissions should be no longer than 60,000 characters with spaces (including abstracts, notes and bibliography) or 30 pages (including illustrations, maps, charts and photos). Authors who wish to present longer submissions should contact the editorial team.

Works must be presented in a file in a readable text format (.doc, .rtf, .odt), with a line spacing of 1.5 points and use of size 12 Times New Roman font. Footnotes are exclusively for additional information and not for bibliographic references; they are to be written in size 9 font.

The system of differentiation of the sections of the article is to be chosen by the author, though a logical structure and a clear internal ordering must be provided. If an article contains many subsections, the use of numbering (1, 1.1, etc.) is recommended. Section titles should be set in bold but not in block capitals.

Images that accompany the text, whether photographs, maps or charts, must be delivered separately and in .tif or .png format; they must be of good quality, with a minimum resolution of 200 dpi (dots per inch). At the foot of each, the authorship and the date must be indicated, and authorization for the publication must be stated, if appropriate.

Articles will be subject to external review by two anonymous experts. On the basis of their reports, the editors will decide whether to accept or reject articles for publication, and they will communicate their decision to the author within a maximum period of six months from the date of receipt. The published article will state the dates of receipt of the original submission and of the final acceptance of the text for publication.

Referencing Rules

Quotations are always set in roman. Short quotations are inserted into the text between quotation marks (“ ”). Long quotations are indented, preceded and followed by empty lines, and set in size 10 font. Single quotation marks (‘ ’) mark out quotations within quotations or metalinguistic usages.

The journal exclusively uses the Chicago Manual of Style’s author-date referencing system.

Under this system, the reference to the author is inserted in parentheses after the quoted text, indicating in text set in roman the author’s last name, the year of publication and, when necessary, the page number. In cases where there is more than one reference by an author for the same year, a letter (a, b, c, etc.) is added to differentiate between the works:

- (Coromines 2002a, 156)
- (Coromines 2002b, 123)
- (Dorion & Poirier 1989, 124)
- (Moreu-Rey et al. 1980)

The name of the author is not included when it has just been mentioned:

As Ramon Amigó reminds us in a recent article on this question, “l’interès pels estudis d’onomàstica va arribar a Catalunya l’últim terç del segle XIX” (2006, 25).
